

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

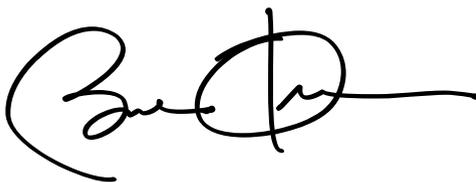

April 30, 2015

We send our warmest wishes to all those participating in National College Signing Day.

America is full of bright, passionate students with boundless potential who know that the possibilities of tomorrow start with hard work today. Our next generation must be able to access the resources and information necessary to compete in our increasingly global economy, and higher education is the best way to prepare for that future.

We are so proud of the young women and men committing to pursue and complete post-secondary degrees, and we congratulate all of you on your selections. There will be tough times and obstacles along your journey, but you must always push yourself to reach higher.

As we celebrate National College Signing Day, we join the families, teachers, counselors, and administrators who have encouraged you along the way to this important moment in letting you know we believe in each and every one of you and wish you all the best.

 Michelle Obama